Response to Amendment

1. The amendment filed on 1/5/05 has been entered. Claims 1, 2, 4-9, 12-32, and 35-61 remain pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1, 2, 9, 15, 38 and 50-61 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Walsh et al (US 6,144,848).

As per claims 1, 2, 60 and 61, Walsh discloses a device including a processor (fig. 1, 122), a memory (fig. 1, 128), and a transmitter (fig. 1, 123) all housed in a portable housing 120 and collectively operable to perform data communications functions (col. 7, lines 3-7), wherein said memory has data indicative of monetary units stored therein, and wherein, during a purchase transaction at a point of sale terminal (col. 1, lines 66 to col. 2, lines 1-12), data indicative of a selected amount of monetary units associated with said purchase transaction is wirelessly sent from said device to said point of sale terminal (col. 15, lines 33-44).

As per claim 9, Walsh discloses a device wherein said data indicative of a selected amount of monetary units is transmitted wirelessly to said point of sale terminal via a radio frequency (col. 14, lines 19-23).

Art Unit: 3627

As per claims 15 and 38, Walsh discloses a keypad input used for dialing telephone numbers and for entering a personal identification number (PIN) or ID codes wherein said PIN must be entered into said device to complete said transaction (col. 15, lines 33-40).

As per claims 50-59, Walsh discloses a smart card engine chip but teach a processor that is capable of selecting the amount of monetary units from the memory for transmission to the point of sale as claimed and further a display screen (fig. 12A, 114) that is also capable of displaying information on the order and displaying an electronic receipt as claimed (col. 15, lines 33-44).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 4-8, 12-14, 16-32, 35-37, and 39-49 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Walsh et al (US 6,144,848).

As per claims 4-8, 12-14, 27-32 and 35-37, Walsh discloses a portable device cellular (see figs. 4, 5) but does not explicitly disclose any other wireless telecommunications devices such as portable computer, laptop or notebook computer, pda, pager and wherein transmission of data can be wirelessly done via radio frequency, short range wireless link (bluetooth), local area network, cellular link, etc as claimed (see abstract). These types of wireless communication device are old and well known in the business art.

Art Unit: 3627

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize any other types of communication devices as claimed because it would provide a system for telecommerce that would offer secure, optionally-encrypted communications and with storage of sensitive confidential data in a secure location.

As per claims 16-26 and 39-49, Walsh does not explicitly disclose a specific point-of-sale but it is old and well known in the business art that a point of sale can be any of the followings: a television, a vending machine, a fast-food drive trough terminal, a gas pump, a check-out station at a retail store, a restaurant, an online store and wherein said transaction is completed while said device is communicating via a voice link with said point of sale terminal as claimed.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize any of the locations as a point-of-sale for the device of Walsh because it would real-time telecommunications that allow the device to behave like a sophisticated "super computer".

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 2, 4-9, 12-32 and 35-61 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
